The Guy In the Glass

The Guy in the Glass
by Dale Wimbrow, 1934

When you get what you want in your struggle for pelf,
And the world makes you King for a day,
Then go to the mirror and look at yourself,
And see what that guy has to say.

For it isn't your Father, or Mother, or Wife,
Whose judgment upon you must pass.
The feller whose verdict counts most in your life
Is the guy staring back from the glass.

He's the feller to please, never mind all the rest,
For he's with you clear up to the end,
And you've passed your most dangerous, difficult test
If the guy in the glass is your friend.

You may be like Jack Horner and "chisel" a plum,
And think you're a wonderful guy,
But the man in the glass says you're only a bum
If you can't look him straight in the eye.

You can fool the whole world down the pathway of years,
And get pats on the back as you pass,
But your final reward will be heartaches and tears
If you've cheated the guy in the glass.

CONFUCIUS QUOTES

Rotten wood cannot be sculpted.

People who do not think far enough ahead, inevitably have worries near at hand.

Be respectful at home, serious at work, faithful in human relations. Even if you go to uncivilized areas, their virtues are not to be abandoned.

Exemplary People understand matters of justice; small people understand matters of profit.

Exemplary people concern themselves with virtue, small people concern themselves with territory.

Three kinds of friends are beneficial and three are harmful. When friends are honest sincere, or knowledgeable, they are beneficial. When friends are pretentious, fawning or opportunistic, they are harmful.

Those whose paths are not the same do not consult one another.

Those who are born knowing are best; those who know by leanings are next. Those who study only when they came to an impasse rank after that. Those who do not study even when at an impasse are considered lowest of the people.

Those who have virtue have something to say, but those who have something to say do not necessarily have virtue.

Good people decrease what is too much, to add to what is too little, accessing things and dealing impartially.

Good people stop evil and promote good.

Good people inspire others and nurture virtue.

Cultivated people foster what is good in others, not what is bad. Petty people do the opposite.

Study without thinking, and you are blind; think without studying, and you are in danger.

Good people keep the petty at a distance, being stern without ill will.

It is not good enough that everyone likes you or dislikes you. It is better when the good among the people like you and the bad dislike you.

If you associate with those who are not centered in their actions, you will become either too uninhibited or too inhibited. Those who are too uninhibited are too aggressive, while those who are too inhibited are too passive.

Good people refrain from what is improper.

If you act on the basis of profit, you will be much resented.

Cultivated people are ashamed to say more than they can do.

Don't worry about the recognition of others; worry about your own lack of ability.

If you are personally upright, things get done without any orders being given. If you are not personally upright, no one will obey even if you do give orders.

Confucius fished with a pole and did use a net; when he hunted, he did not shoot a roosting bird.

Good people are careful about what they say and moderate in eating and drinking.

To propitiate a spirit not one's own is to curry favor; to see justice but not do it is to lack courage.

Good people stand without changing places.

The armed forces may be deprived of their commander, but a man cannot be deprived of his will.

Good people are factual in their speech, consistent in their deeds.

How do you please your boss, don't deceive him, even if you have to offend him.

Ideal people are universal and not clannish. Small minded people are clannish and not universal.

I choose the good and follow it, and try to change what is not good.

Good people forgive faults and pardon crimes.

If you cannot correct yourself, what can you do about correcting others.

To be poor without bitterness is easy; to be rich without arrogance is hard.

People in power worry about getting something, once they have it they worry about losing it. As long as they are worried about losing, there is not telling what they will do.

If you make a mistake and don't correct it, that is called a mistake.

Place loyalty and faithfulness first; don't associate with anyone who is not as good as you are, and don't hesitate to change when you have erred.

Virtue is never isolated; it always has neighbors.

If those nearby are pleased, those far away will come.

Good people prepare weapons to guard against the unexpected.

To go to war with untrained people is tantamount to abandoning them.

Few lose out on account of Prudence.

Good people follow virtue, building on the small to attain the great.

There are sprouts that do not send up shoots; there are shoots that do not bear fruit.

Don't wish for speed; don't see small advantages. If you wish for speed, you won't succeed; if you see small advantages, great things will not be accomplished.

Cultivated people reach upward; petty people reach downward.

Superior people can certainly come to an impasse. It is the petty person who loses self-control at an impasse.

Good people persist to the end and find out if something is wrong.

Promote the honest over the crooked, and the people will obey. Promote the crooked over the honest and the will surly not obey.

Respond to hostility with honesty; respond to virtue with virtue.

Good people articulate directions and carry out tasks.

In funerals, sadness is more important than the arrangements.

When Confucius ate beside someone in mourning, he never ate his fill. On a day that he had himself mourned, Confucius did not sing.

Good people consider problems and prevent them.

A cultivated person does not promote people on account of what they say, nor ignore what is said because of who is saying it.

When everyone dislikes something, it should be examined. When everyone likes something, it should be examined.

A commitment to better oneself therefore implies dedication to the welfare of others.

Crimes among the lower classes reflects corruption in the upper classes.

Truthful words offend the ears. So it is regarded as commonplace for people who speak truthfully to be resented.

Those who conquer themselves are strong.

Many philosophers consider evaluation of individual qualities and talents one of the most important task of leadership.

When biting and painful slander does not affect you, then you can be called clear and perceptive

When you see wise people, think of becoming equal to them, when you see unwise people, reflect inwardly on yourself.

A disciple asked Confucius about government: "See to it that there is enough food, enough arms and the trust of the people in government. If one must go, omit arms. If two must go, omit arms and food. Since ancient times, people have died, but nothing can be accomplished without the trust of the people.

It is after the coldest weather that you know the pine and the cedar outlast the withering.

The qualities of social leaders are wind, the qualities of the common people are grass; grass will always bend in the wind.

Before you embark on a journey of revenge, dig two graves.

Everything has its beauty but not everyone sees it.

Forget injuries, never forget kindnesses.

I hear and I forget. I see and I remember. I do and I understand.

What the superior man seeks is in himself; what the small man seeks is in others.

If a man takes no thought about what is distant, he will find sorrow near at hand.

The cautious seldom err.

The firm, the enduring, the simple, and the modest are near to virtue.

The superior man...does not set his mind either for anything, or against anything; what is right he will follow.

Things that are done, it is needless to speak about...things that are past, it is needless to blame.

An oppressive government is more to be feared than a tiger.

Better a diamond with a flaw than a pebble without.

Do not impose on others what you yourself do not desire.

Faced with what is right, to leave it undone shows a lack of courage.

He who speaks without modesty will find it difficult to make his words good.

I hear and I forget. I see and I remember. I do and I understand.

If I am walking with two other men, each of them will serve as my teacher. I will pick out the good points of the one and imitate them, and the bad points of the other and correct them in myself.

If you think in terms of a year, plant a seed; if in terms of ten years, plant trees; if in terms of 100 years, teach the people.

It does not matter how slowly you go as long as you do not stop

It is easy to hate and it is difficult to love. This is how the whole scheme of things works. All good things are difficult to achieve; and bad things are very easy to get.

Never give a sword to a man who can't dance.

Real knowledge is to know the extent of one's ignorance.

Silence is a true friend who never betrays.

Success depends upon previous preparation, and without such preparation there is sure to be failure.

The cautious seldom err.

The object of the superior man is truth.

The superior man understands what is right; the inferior man understands what will sell.

To be wronged is nothing unless you continue to remember it.

To see and listen to the wicked is already the beginning of wickedness.

To see the right and not to do it is cowardice.

When it is obvious that the goals cannot be reached, don't adjust the goals, adjust the action steps.

Wisdom, compassion, and courage are the three universally recognized moral qualities of men.
